The Legend of the Bluebonnet

The legend of the bluebonnet is a Native American legend about a time when the Comanche people were experiencing a terrible drought. Starvation is setting in so the Shaman goes to the mountains to contact the Great Spirit to learn what they can do to save their tribe.

When he returns, he announces to the village that the Great Spirit sent word that they need to make a burnt offering sacrifice of their greatest possession. According to the Shaman the tribe is being punished by the Great Spirit for taking so much from the land and giving nothing back in return.

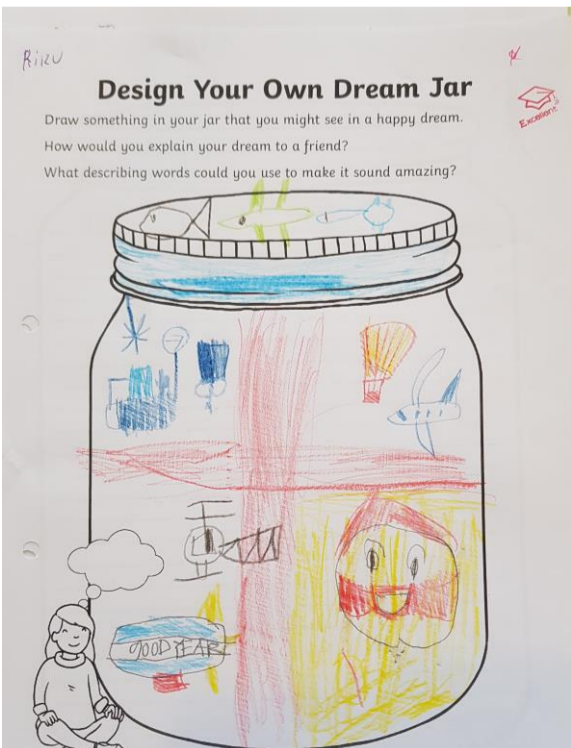

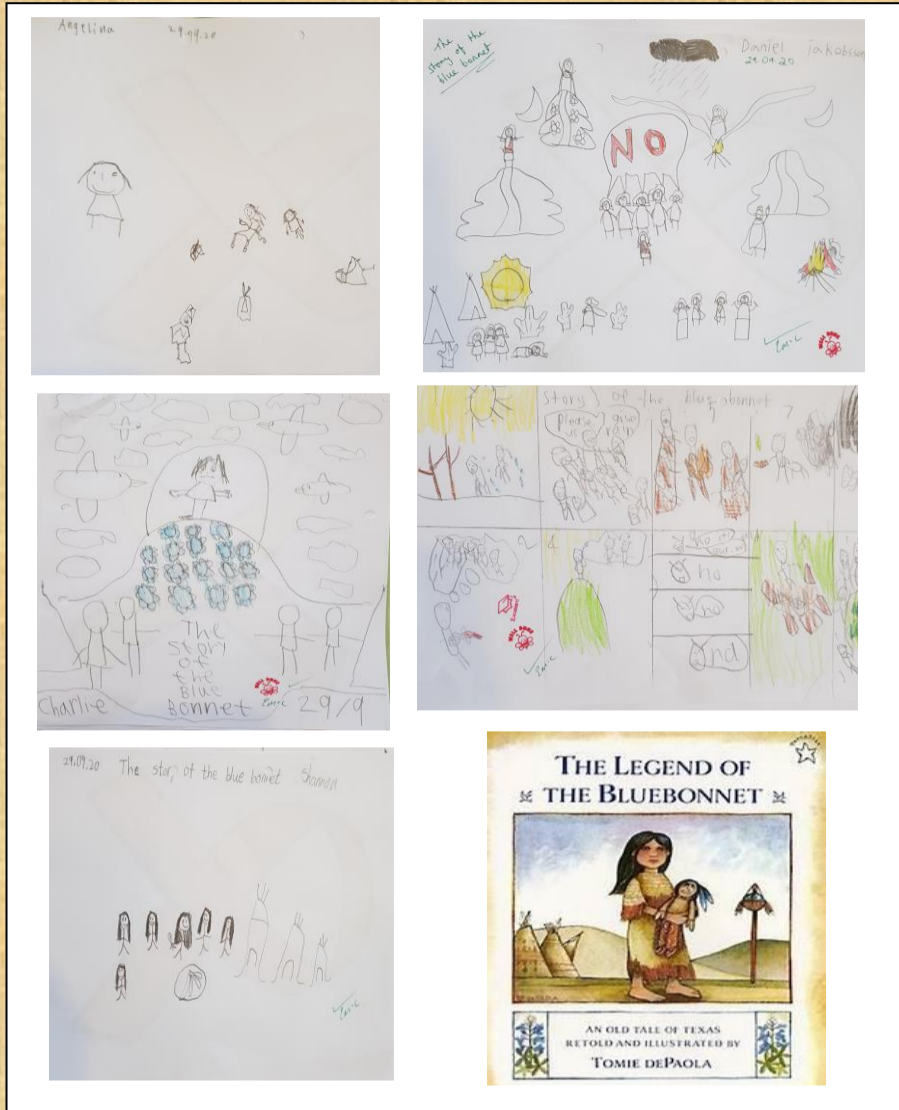

Many in the tribe hesitate to make such a sacrifice, but one young girl, She-Who-Is-Alone, knows that her warrior doll is just that kind of sacrifice. The warrior doll is the only thing she has left from her mother who died from the famine.

She-Who-Is-Alone makes her sacrifice and every year the Great Spirit covers the hills of Texas with the glorious colours of the bluebonnets to honour her great heart and great generosity.

Hannah would sacrifice her books.

Michelle would sacrifice everything.

Riku and Sophie share with us, the things that make them happy.

Dragon Island by Daniel

School closed because of virus.

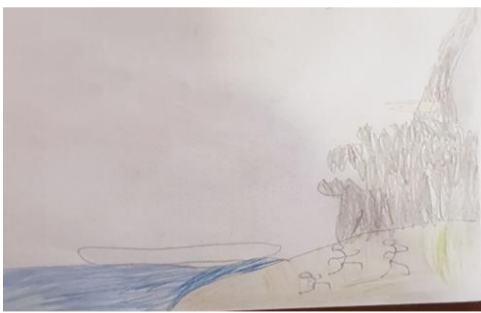

The boys have a meeting on how to get medicine.

They found a clue in a map of where to get the medicine.

The boys are going to Dragon Island.

The medicine is in the Dragon's cave.

The cave is protected by the Dragon and he spits fire on them.

They trick the dragon that they are dead, so he goes away.

The boys walk over the bridge into the dragon forest.

There are crocodiles in the water, so the boys must stay on the bridge.

They get out of the forest and into the cave.

They found the medicine on top of the rock

The boys are happy and dancing.

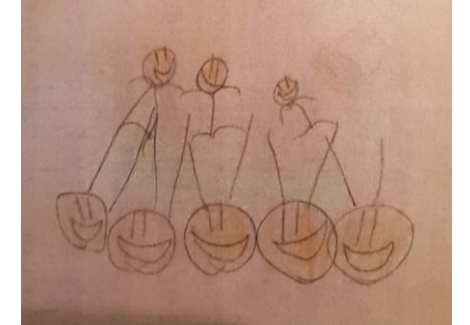

When they try to go back, they saw the dragon sleeping and sick.

They give medicine to the dragon to help him and he sneezed, and fire came out of his nose.

The boys run fast back to their boat and escape with the medicine.

They are back in the village with the medicine. Everyone is happy.

Everyone has to get an injection in their bum.

All the kids can now go back to school.
